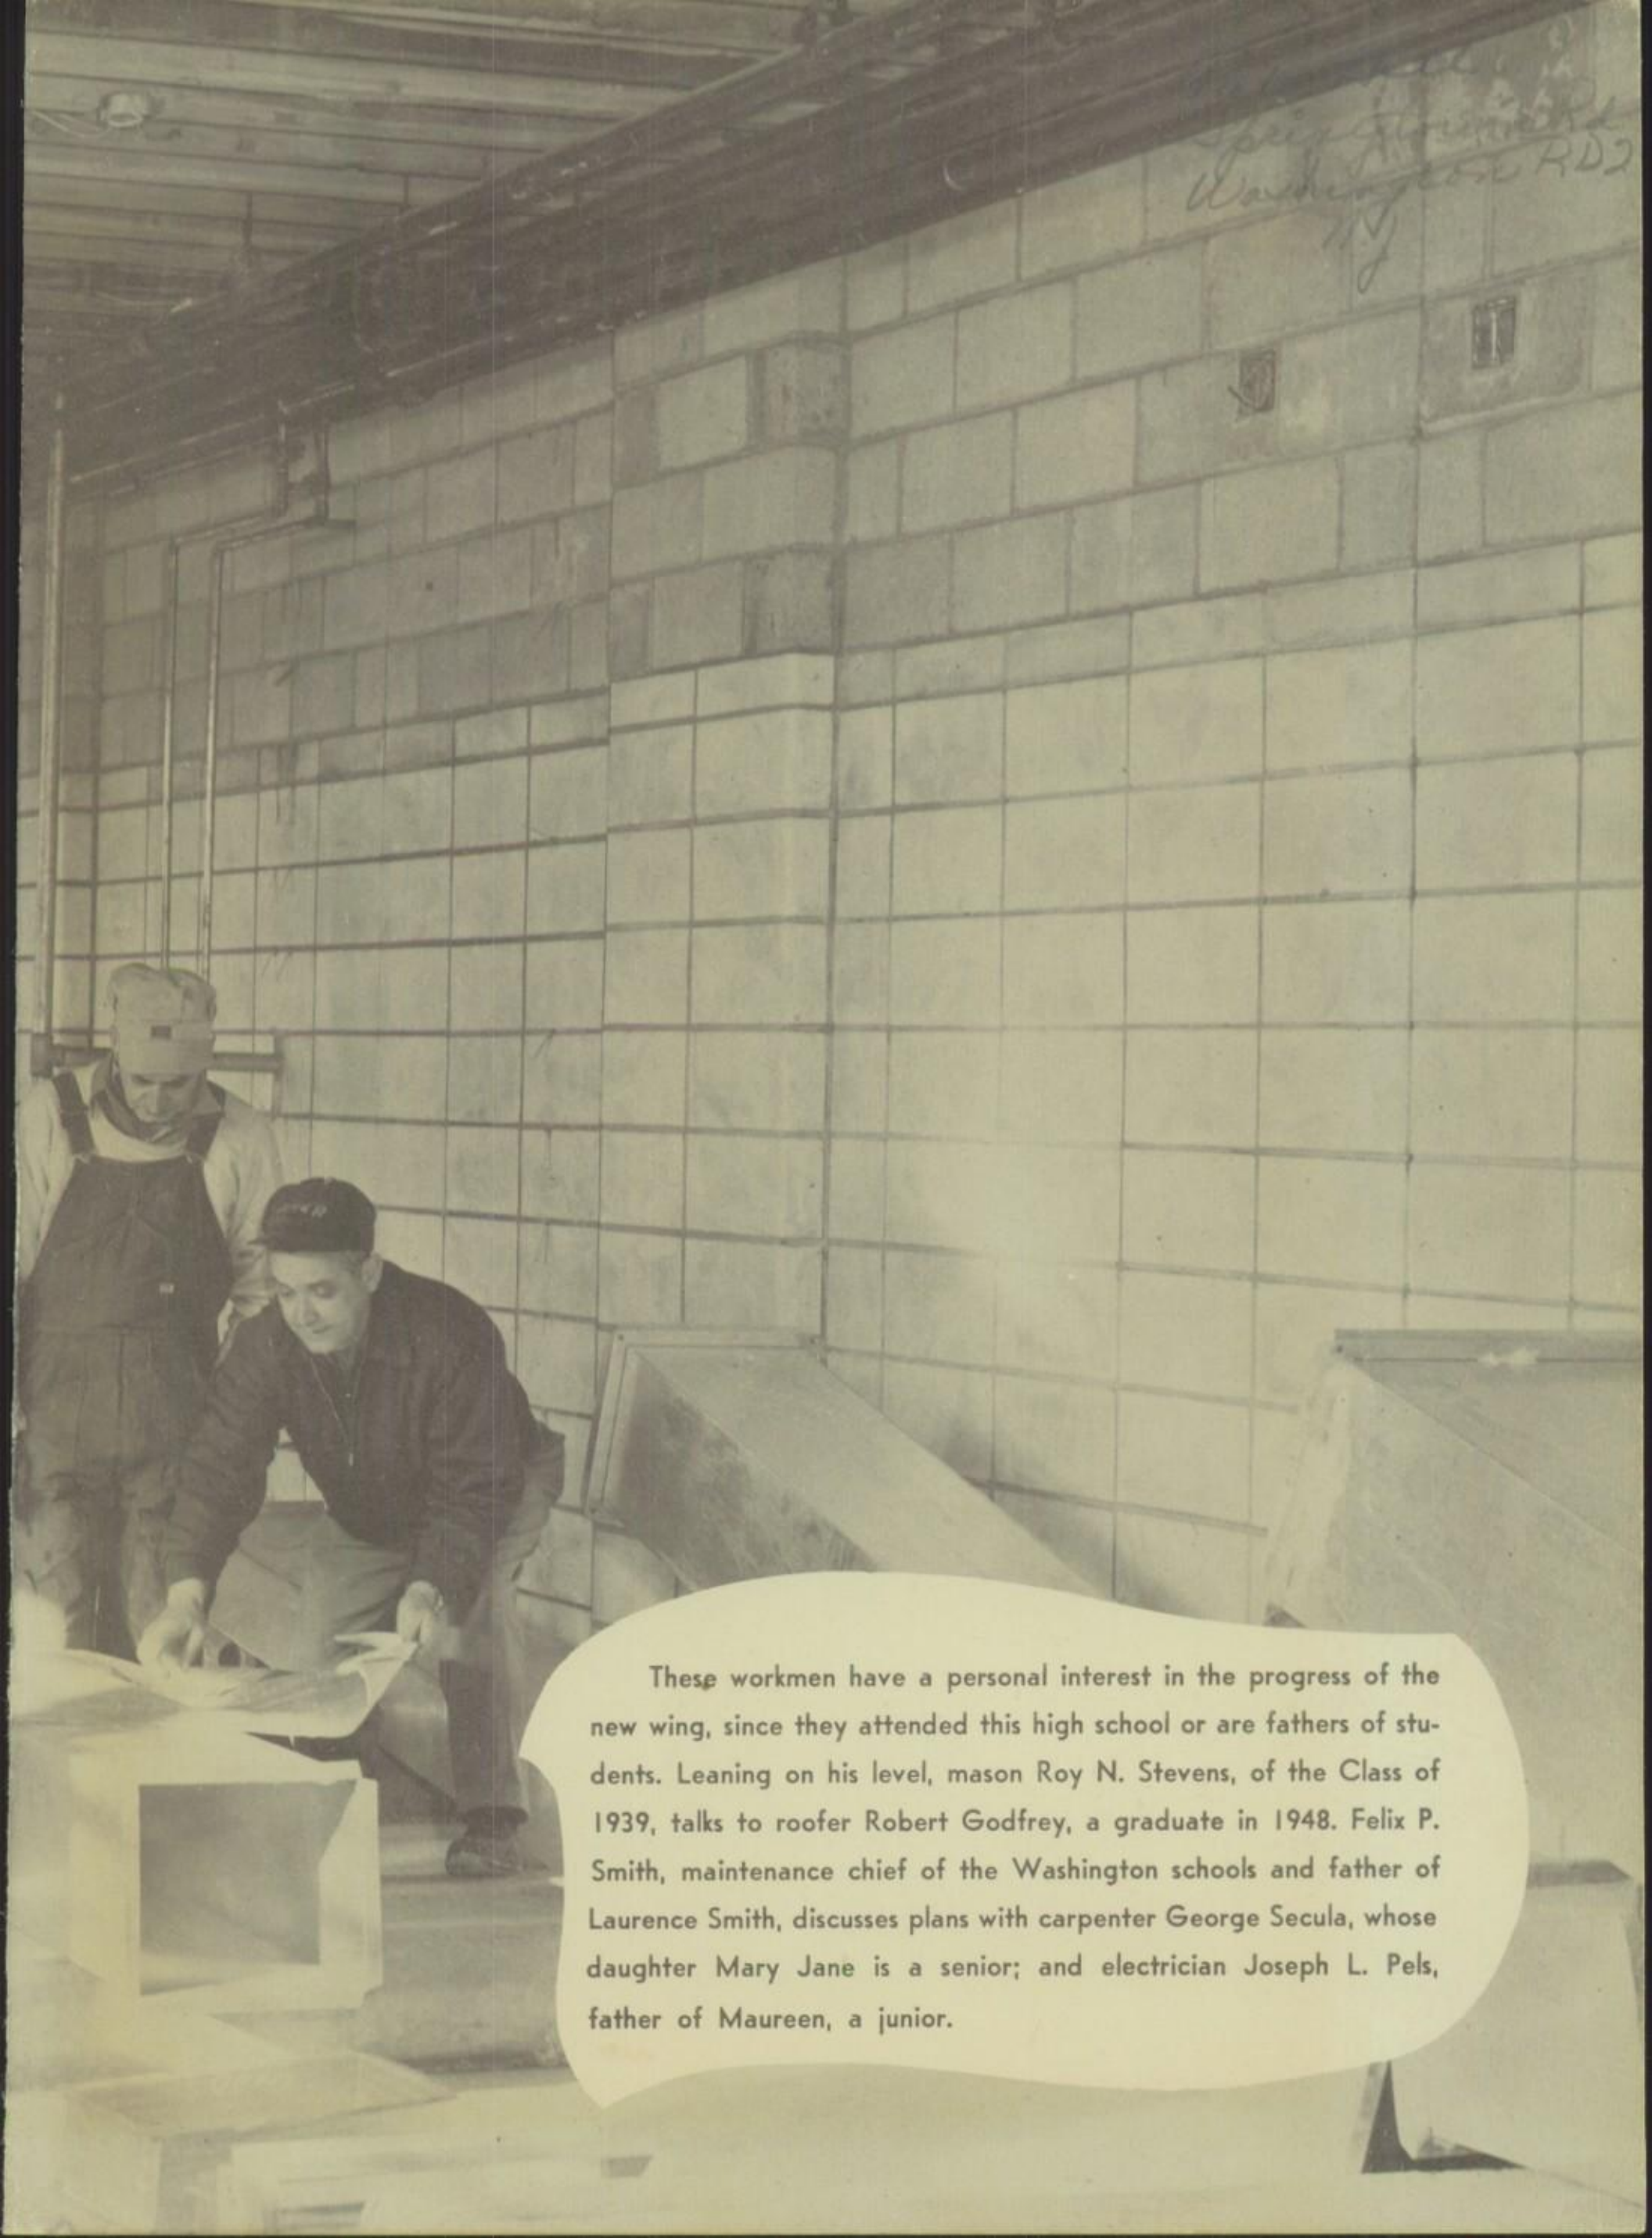
Partners in Progress



These workmen have a personal interest in the progress of the new wing, since they attended this high school or are fathers of students. Leaning on his level, mason Roy N. Stevens, of the Class of 1939, talks to roofer Robert Godfrey, a graduate in 1948. Felix P. Smith, maintenance chief of the Washington schools and father of Laurence Smith, discusses plans with carpenter George Secula, whose daughter Mary Jane is a senior; and electrician Joseph L. Pels, father of Maureen, a junior.

FOREWORD

In recent years Washington High School has grown both in the school population and in the building itself. Crowded conditions required additional facilities to provide for the influx of students. In 1952, after the first addition had been built, the high school enrollment was 421. As of May 1, 1957, the active high school enrollment was 517, with a continuing forecast of annual increase.

Before the new wing could become a reality, much preparation was necessary. The building started as an idea. Plans had to be discussed, drawn, and presented to the public for approval. A construction company had to be chosen, workmen hired, and countless other important details worked out.

All this activity, however, merely provides a place for education. The most important consideration in any educational program is the student. His attitude toward school influences and reflects, in many ways, the life within the building. Enthusiasm and interest in the classroom and participation in extra-curricular activities are vitally important in the development of individual emotional and mental maturity.

With improved building facilities, our school has made real progress. This yearbook, the 1957 Cache, shows through pictures and text just how we students have also progressed. Enter our high school through its open door, enjoy our "new look", and share our portrayal of the past school year.

DEDICATION

We Thank You, Miss Stone

The key word of our yearbook is progress, but the keystone of our yearbook is Miss Evelyn Stone, Cache adviser for 11 years.

The mammoth task of organizing a yearbook staff and seeing them through the trials and tribulations of preparing a dummy, scheduling and taking photos, identifying pictures, writing copy, designing and selecting a cover, contacting the publishers and supervising the thousand and one other details so essential to the creation of a yearbook, is in itself a full-time job. How Miss Stone manages to squeeze this into her already busy schedule of four senior English classes, a guidance program, and a Junior Class advisership has always been a mystery to us. Yet she does all this and more in the eight to nine hours she spends daily Monday through Friday in Washington High School.

Because of Miss Stone's wonderful sense of humor, vibrant personality, and excellent teaching, students have a new approach to the values of books, poetry, writing, short stories, television programs, movies, and newspapers. She has instilled in us a more challenging attitude toward these and many other things; above all she has given us the incentive to THINK.

We are proud to dedicate the 1957 Cache to MISS EVELYN E. STONE.

Now let's be cautious. Are you SURE that name is spelled correctly?

WE SALUTE

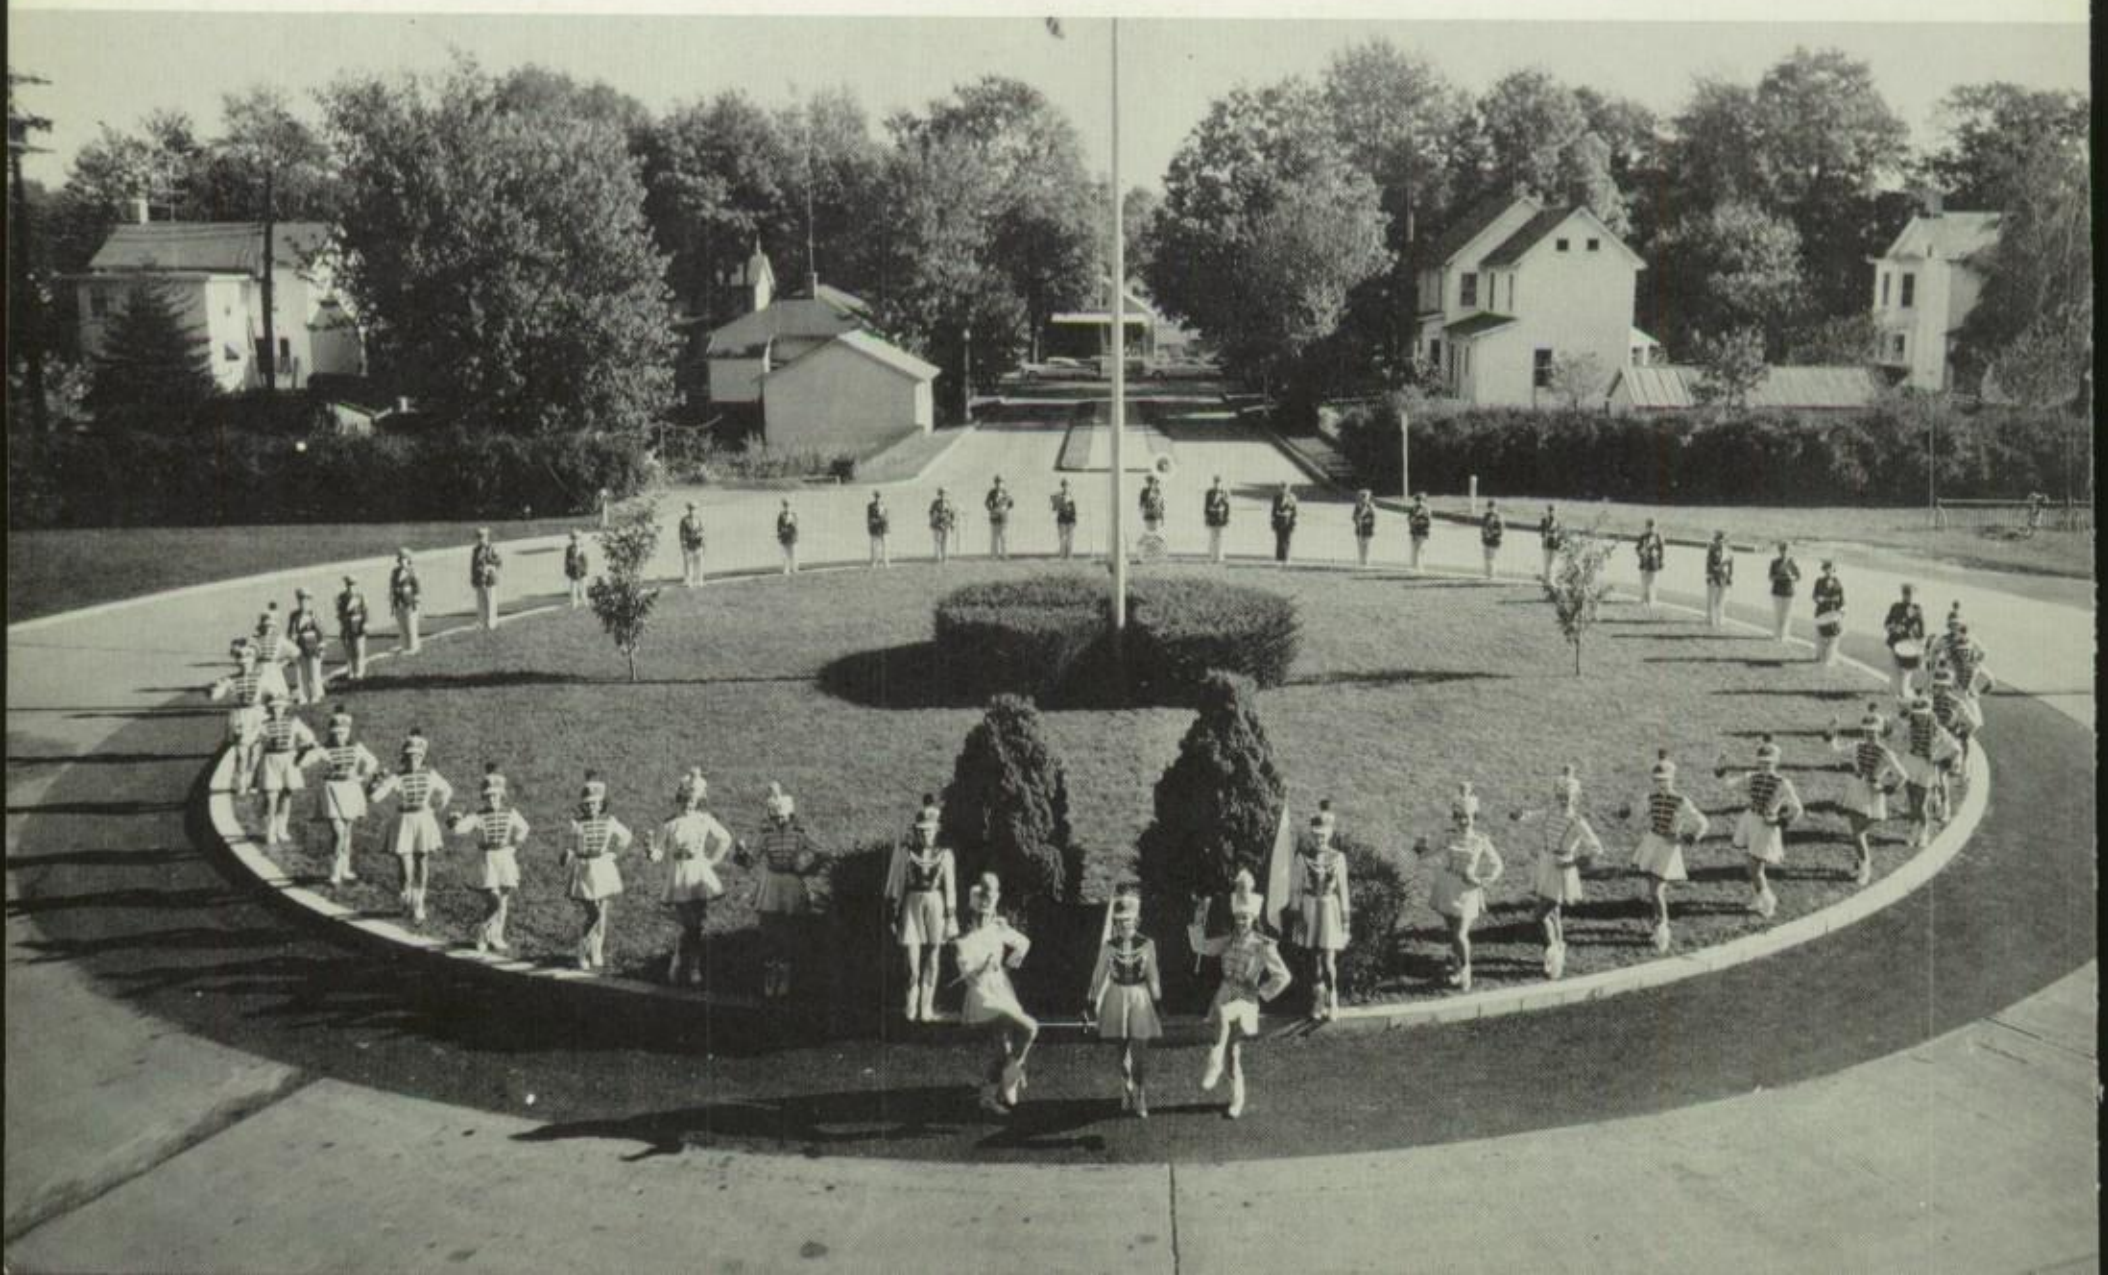
In 1919 Dorothy G. Mulkey came to Washington High School to teach in the Commercial Department. Samuel M. Tressler, Supervising Principal of Washington schools, initiated a program of guidance counseling for students by homeroom teachers. Miss Mulkey participated in this program. Later, as head of the Business Education Department, she set up a placement service for business students in particular, although students in other departments were also helped. Next, Miss Mulkey became head of the Guidance Committee for the high school; and, finally, in 1954 she became the school's first Director of Guidance.

In addition to her regular staff duties, Miss Mulkey ably coached plays, directed senior activities, and chaperoned class trips to Washington, D. C. She also acted as adviser to the National Honor Society, the Future Teachers of America, and the Guidance Service Club.

Besides being active in the Presbyterian Choir, Sunday School, and Alpha Guild, for several years Miss Mulkey was chairman of the Education Committee of the Washington Woman's Club.

Influenced by Miss Mulkey and other public spirited people, civic and service organizations have set up various awards for students who wish to further their education. Some graduates have already received these awards; others in future years will benefit from these scholarships.

We salute her dedicated service which has helped to make our school what it is and to set the pattern for what it may become.



MISS MULKEY HONORED FOR 38 YEARS OF SERVICE

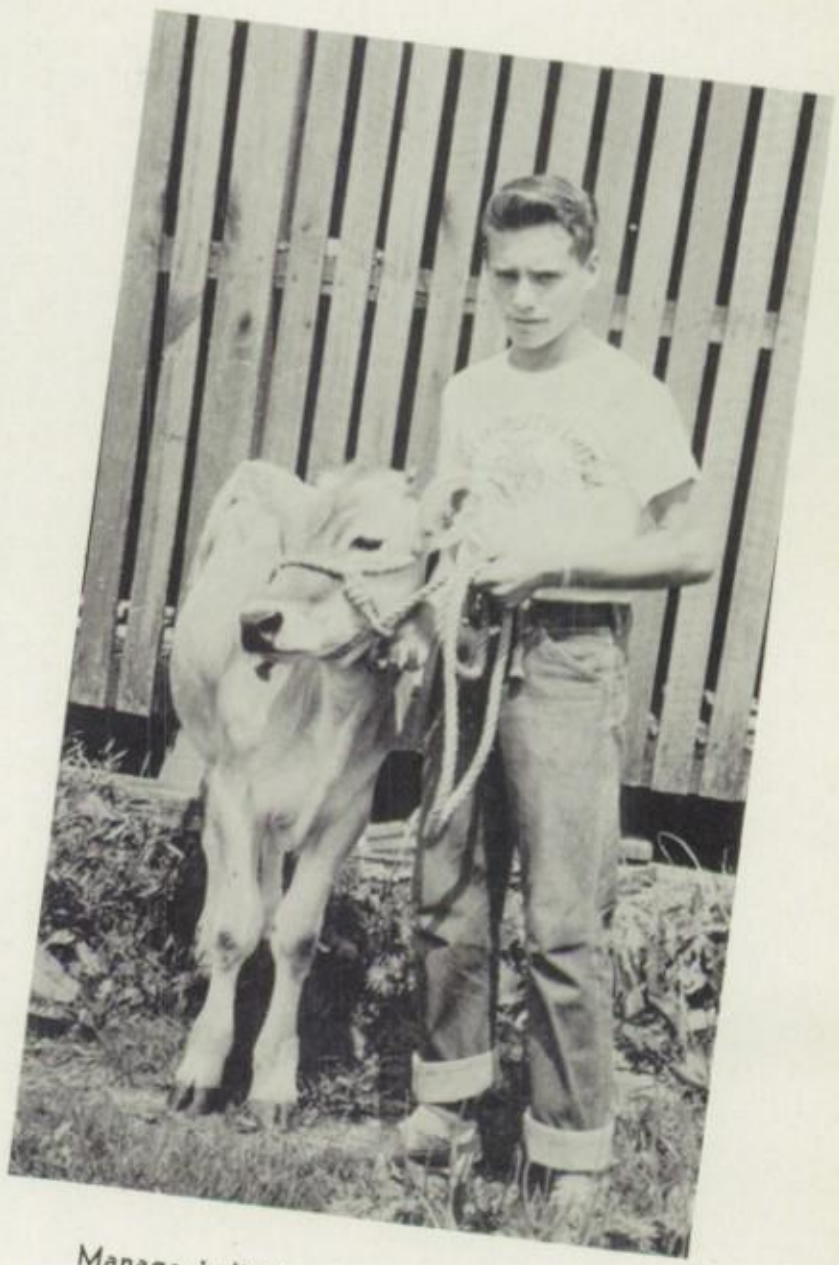
Repair and maintain farm machinery in the Ag Shop: R. Szucs, N. Colluci, F. Snyder, N. Shotwell.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

Engage in various club projects. Mr. Dickinson and C. Mullikin, H. Barends, F. Kinney, B. DeGroff, freshmen, inspect one of their bee hives.

In addition to the usual classroom work the Future Farmers of the Agriculture Department . . .



Manage individual projects—Jack Smith and one of his Brown Swiss calves.

Apply knowledge obtained in the classroom by actual practice in the field. W. Kerr, W. Schaarschmidt, F. Convey, B. Snyder, N. Russell, T. Pyatt, J. Rymon of the Sophomore Class transplant pine trees.

In the Christmas legend, "A Robe for the Duchess," the orphaned children, Richard Hawk and Dorothy Shook, and the townspeople—Dolores Miramontes, Edda Bass, Jacqueline Korcensky and Mary Ellen Stover—prepare for a visit from the King.

Dorothy Shook, orphaned slavey, warms the feet of Richard Collins, the beggar child who sought shelter from the storm.

CUE AND CURTAIN CLUB

This year the Cue and Curtain Club presented one-act plays of different types, serious and humorous. A Robe for the Duchess, Wildcat Willie Swears Off Swearing, and If Girls Asked Boys for Dates were presented in assembly. The members also made experimental recordings for which they used the facilities of WCRV.

Despite the fact that his mother has repeatedly warned him to beware of fresh girls, Fred Pheiffer seems to be lapping up Charlotte Rymon's, "You know you're pretty cool, boy!"

If Girls Ask Boys for Dates—then girls provide transportation. Handing over the car keys, Mother Elaine Stopp solves that problem for Mary Jane Secula, Charlotte Rymon, and their dates, Fred Pheiffer and Ronald Stenlake.

HOME ECONOMICS

Barbara Rubel, Rose Mary Douglas, Donna Smith, and Lorraine Harris bake delicious Christmas cookies.

MANUAL TRAINING

Carpenter Kent Bergmann dusts the piano bench he made in manual training class.

ART

Astride the ladder, Charles Vasko strings Christmas iights. His assistants are Richard Moser, Ann Nootenboom, and Doris Rothenbeck.

CHORUS

Elaine Stopp, marimba soloist, was presented the Woman's Club Award as the best all around Chorus member.

GARDEN

Food at last!

A breather in the garden.

Irja, at right, questions Selma about a Turkish slipper.

Tea time is the same the world over. Hostess Mary Trubek pours for Irja.

WE ENTERTAIN EUROPEAN

Mrs. Mary Louise Christine explains the fundamentals of typing to Selma.

For the second time Washington High School participated in the New York Herald Tribune's exchange student program. Selma Sacir of Gaziantep, Turkey, and Irja Lammi of Turku, Finland, joined the student body from January 21 to February 1.

Flown to this country by Trans-World Airlines and Pan American Airways, both girls participated in the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

During their stay in Washington Irja lived with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Trubek, and Selma was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hill. Both girls attended classes, prepared assignments, and took tests in English and United States History II. They visited other classes, were interviewed by seniors Helaine Cheplovitz and Dorothy Shook for Station WCRV, and participated in an assembly program.

Irja and Selma enjoy refreshments, American style.

STUDENTS

"Do you like cauliflower?" Joe Kayal, in the California Fruit Market, asks Selma and her friends, Harold Warne and Pat Hill.

Mary Trubek, flanked by Selma and Pat, admire hats in La Boutique.

Hot off the press, the sports section is checked by assistant editor Mary Ann Prakopcyk and Rosemarie Glaser, editor.

Speeding along to meet the typing deadline, Dolores Miramontes, Pat Flynn, and Joan Money set up the feature articles.

At a staff meeting, the layout is planned by Rosemarie Glaser, Alberta Baker, Ronald Stenlake, Jim Howell, and Linda Bashore, while Mr. Gabosch, adviser, and Dorothy Banghart plan a headline.

PRESS CLUB

Louise Velardi and Charles Mott turn advertising money over to Evalyn Gottschalk, treasurer.

Artists Kerry Meichsner and Linda Bashore watch Charles Levy prepare to stencil a Streak cover.

Shutter experts Cyrus Carmelia of THE STAR and Charles Sarson, CACHE photographer, take a long shot.

Staff Conference: Betty Preziosi, sports; Miss Evelyn Stone, adviser; Mary Trubek, underclassmen; Alice Varney, literary editor; Evalyn Gottschalk, activities.

SENIOR ACTIVITIES

An interest in international affairs takes us to the United Nations.

Evelyn Olson offers the cup that cheers to Carol Ann Beers, new National Honor Society member.

An hilarious panel discovers Johnston Oberly's secret—a two-way stretch.

President Terry DeMont invites the audience to share in an evening of fun and frolic.

To Evelyn Olson, who can play any musical selection, we give her our original to add to her collection.

CLASS NIGHT

"Being of sound mind (?), we bequeath....."

Award winners: Helaine Cheplovitz, First National Bank; Elaine Stopp, Washington Teachers' Association, Future Teachers' of America, Kiwanis Club; Carol Ann Beers, National Honor Society; Jacqueline Korcensky, Rotary Club; Charlotte Rymon, National Honor Society; Anne Gallagher, Band; Audrey Dildine, National Honor Society; Patricia Tomson, Woman's Club. Second row: Evelyn Olson, Lions Club; Dorothy Shook, UNICO; Frank Snyder, County Agriculture; William Paul, Future Farmers of America Chapter Farmer; Ralph Wolverton, County Agriculture; Wayne Hart, National and Star Chapter Farmer; Roy Grabner, Bausch & Lomb Science Award, Rensselaer Mathematics and Science Award, Washington Trust Co.; Alice Varney, D.A.R. Good Citizenship; Harriet Zemel, A. B. Davidson Essay.

Principal Karl Zettelmoyer has a few parting words for the class officers: Betty Jane Matey, corresponding secretary; Anne Gallagher, recording secretary; Audley Travis, treasurer; Terrance DeMont, president; Henderson Supplee, vice president.

"Put your tassel on the left side, Tony!"

COMMENCEMENT

The processional.

Representing the Class of 1957, Roy Grabner welcomes parents and friends of the graduates.

Diploma in hand, Wayne Feilbach thanks Martin Bry-Nildsen, president of the Board of Education.

LOOKING TOWARD THE FUTURE

Guidance Director Miss Dorothy G. Mulkey, R. Grabner, A. Guidi, W. Fensel, and Wayne Feilbach, future engineers, talk with a representative from J. T. Baker Chemical Company.

These seniors take finger dexterity tests administered by the New Jersey State Employment Office. D. Frey, P. Geene, Nicholas Varhall, director; M. Rudy, J. Gaylord, Miss D. G. Mulkey, H. Cheplovitz. Below: A. Smith, C. Vasko, L. McGuire.

Evalyn Gottschalk and Sonja Bielanowski primp in preparation for Merchandising Day at Laubach's. The store invited area high school students interested in merchandising as a career to spend a day assisting in the operation of the store.

Some of our hobbies lead us into vocational fields. Ronald Stenlake and LeMont Evans record a program for WCRV, the Washington radio station. These boys do almost all of the recording for high school programs.

Dorothy Shook and Helaine Cheplovitz check notes before their on-the-air debut.

At the Student Center prospective student Harriet Zemel discusses campus life and the advantages of a college education with a Douglass senior.

Most boys need to be handy with tools. Lee Smith proves that he is no exception, as he sands the shelves of the cabinet he made in shop.

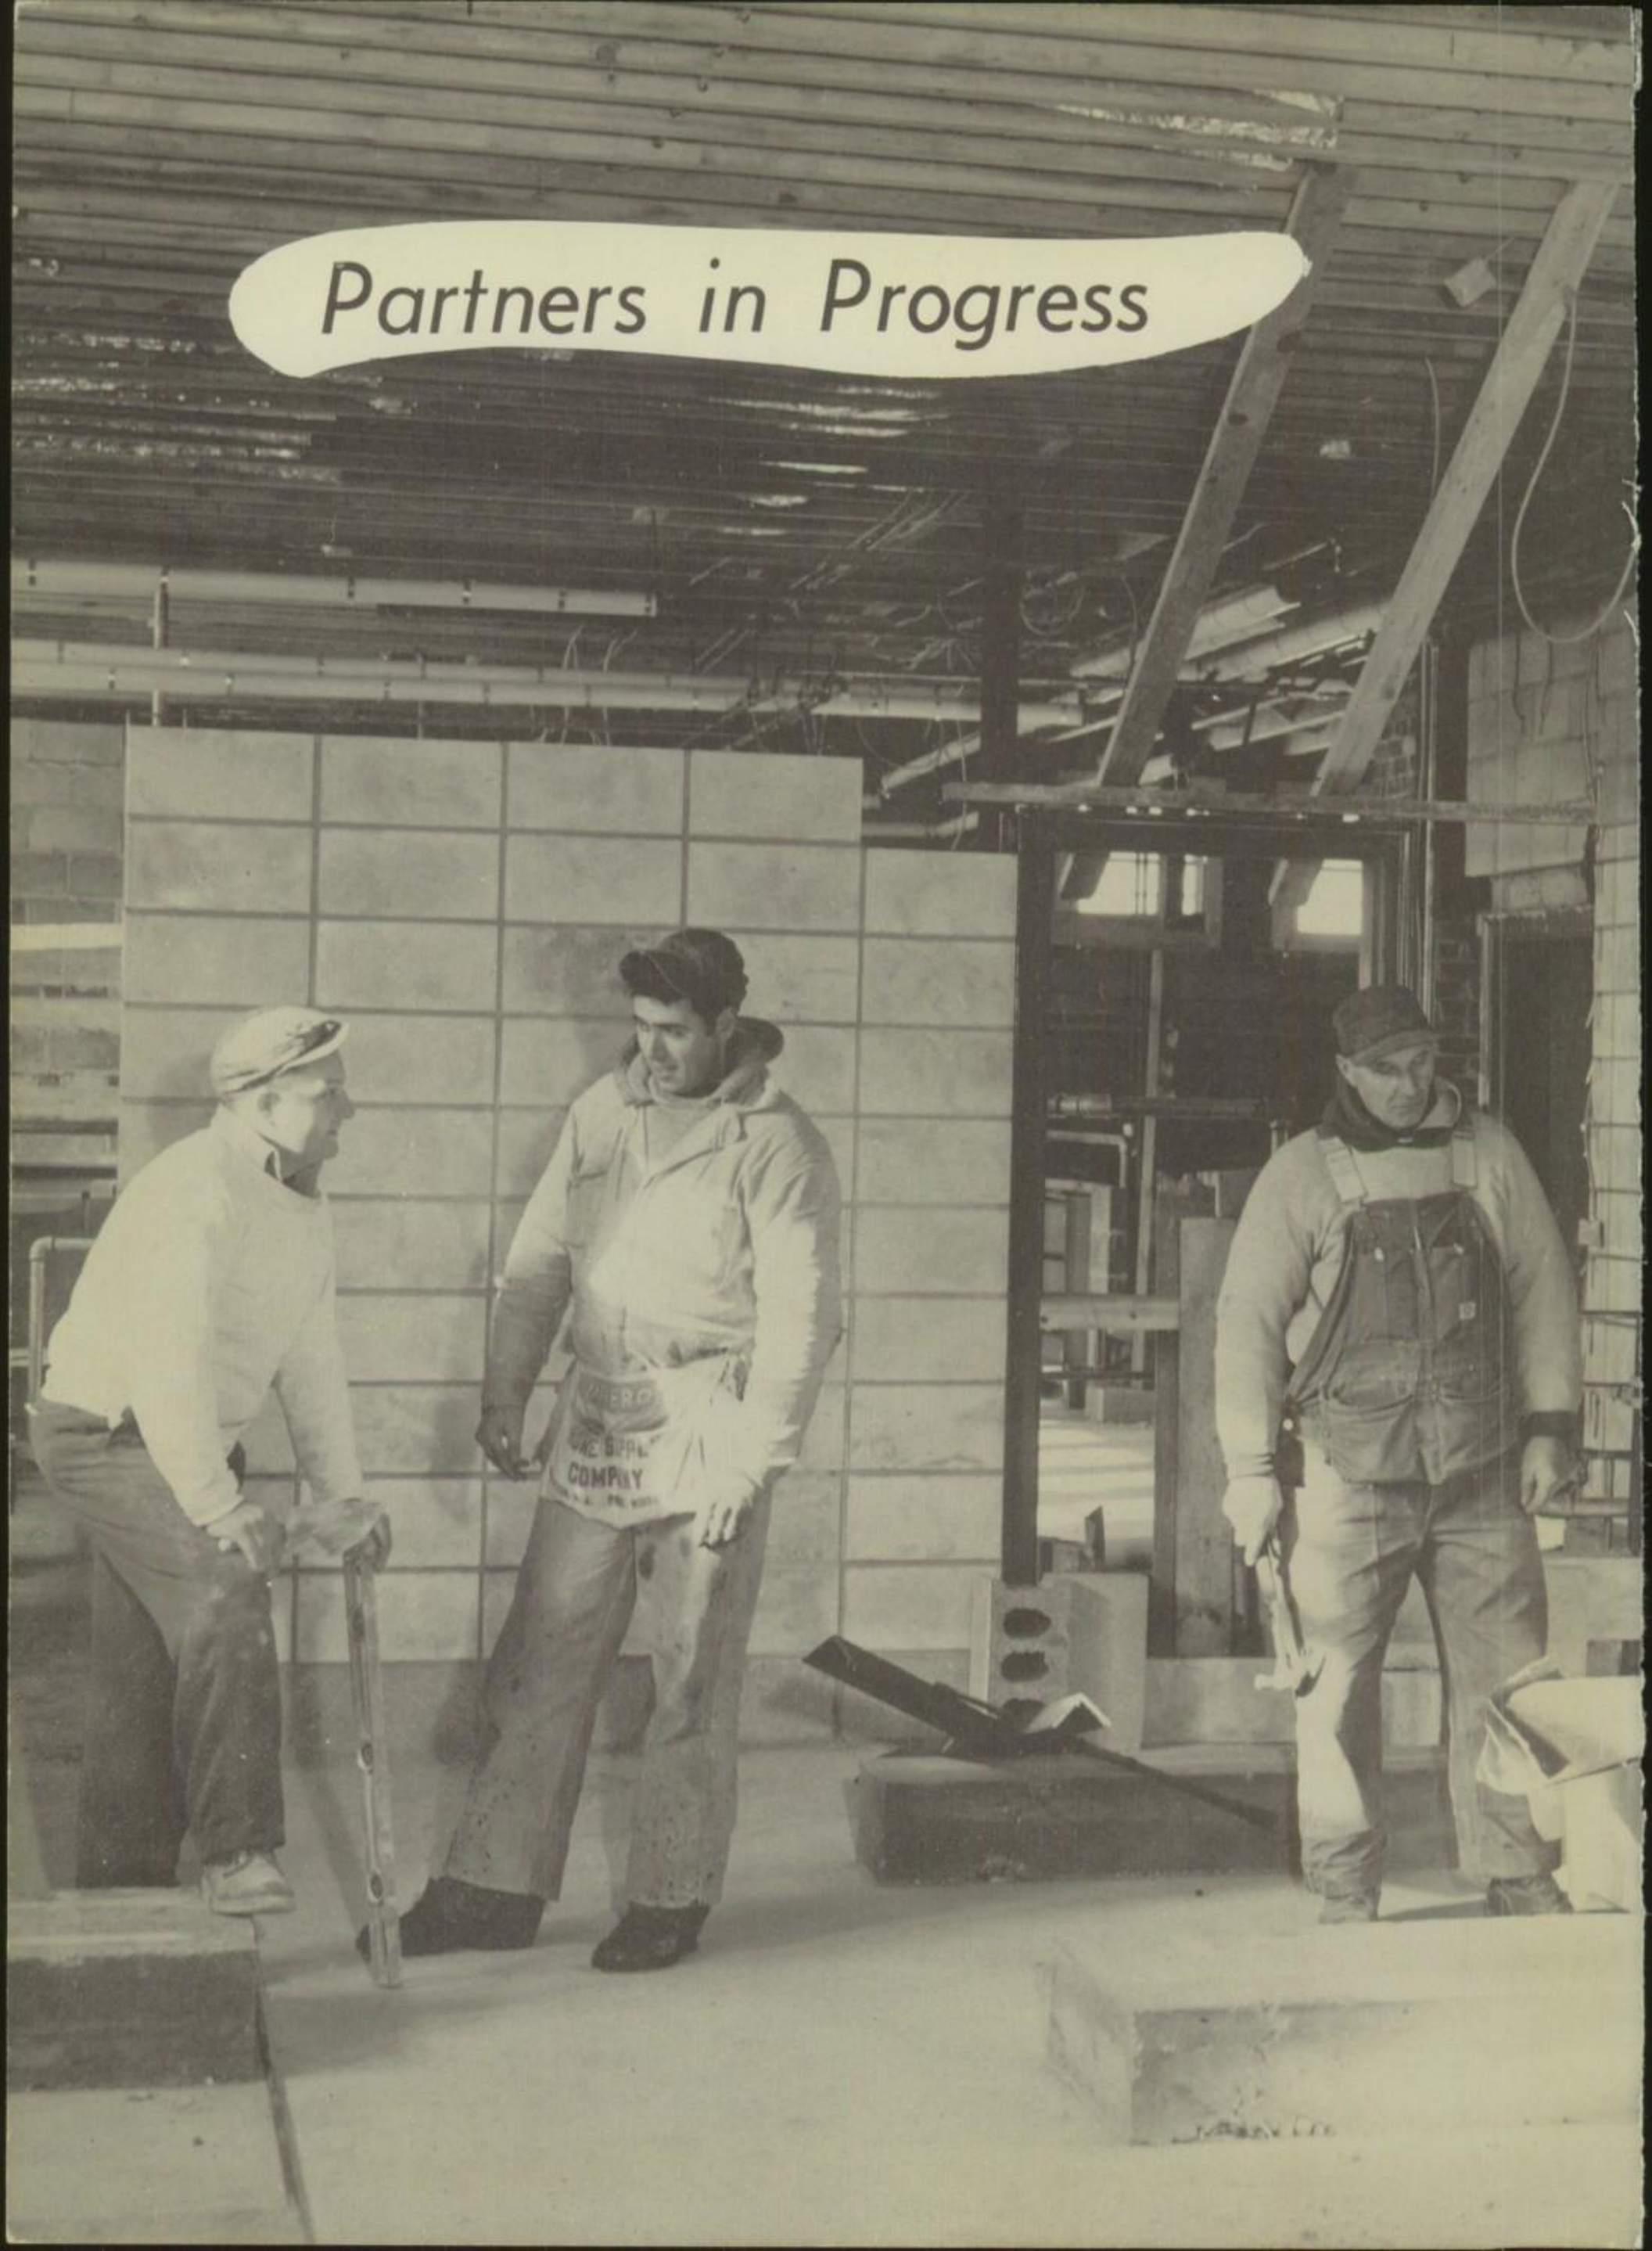
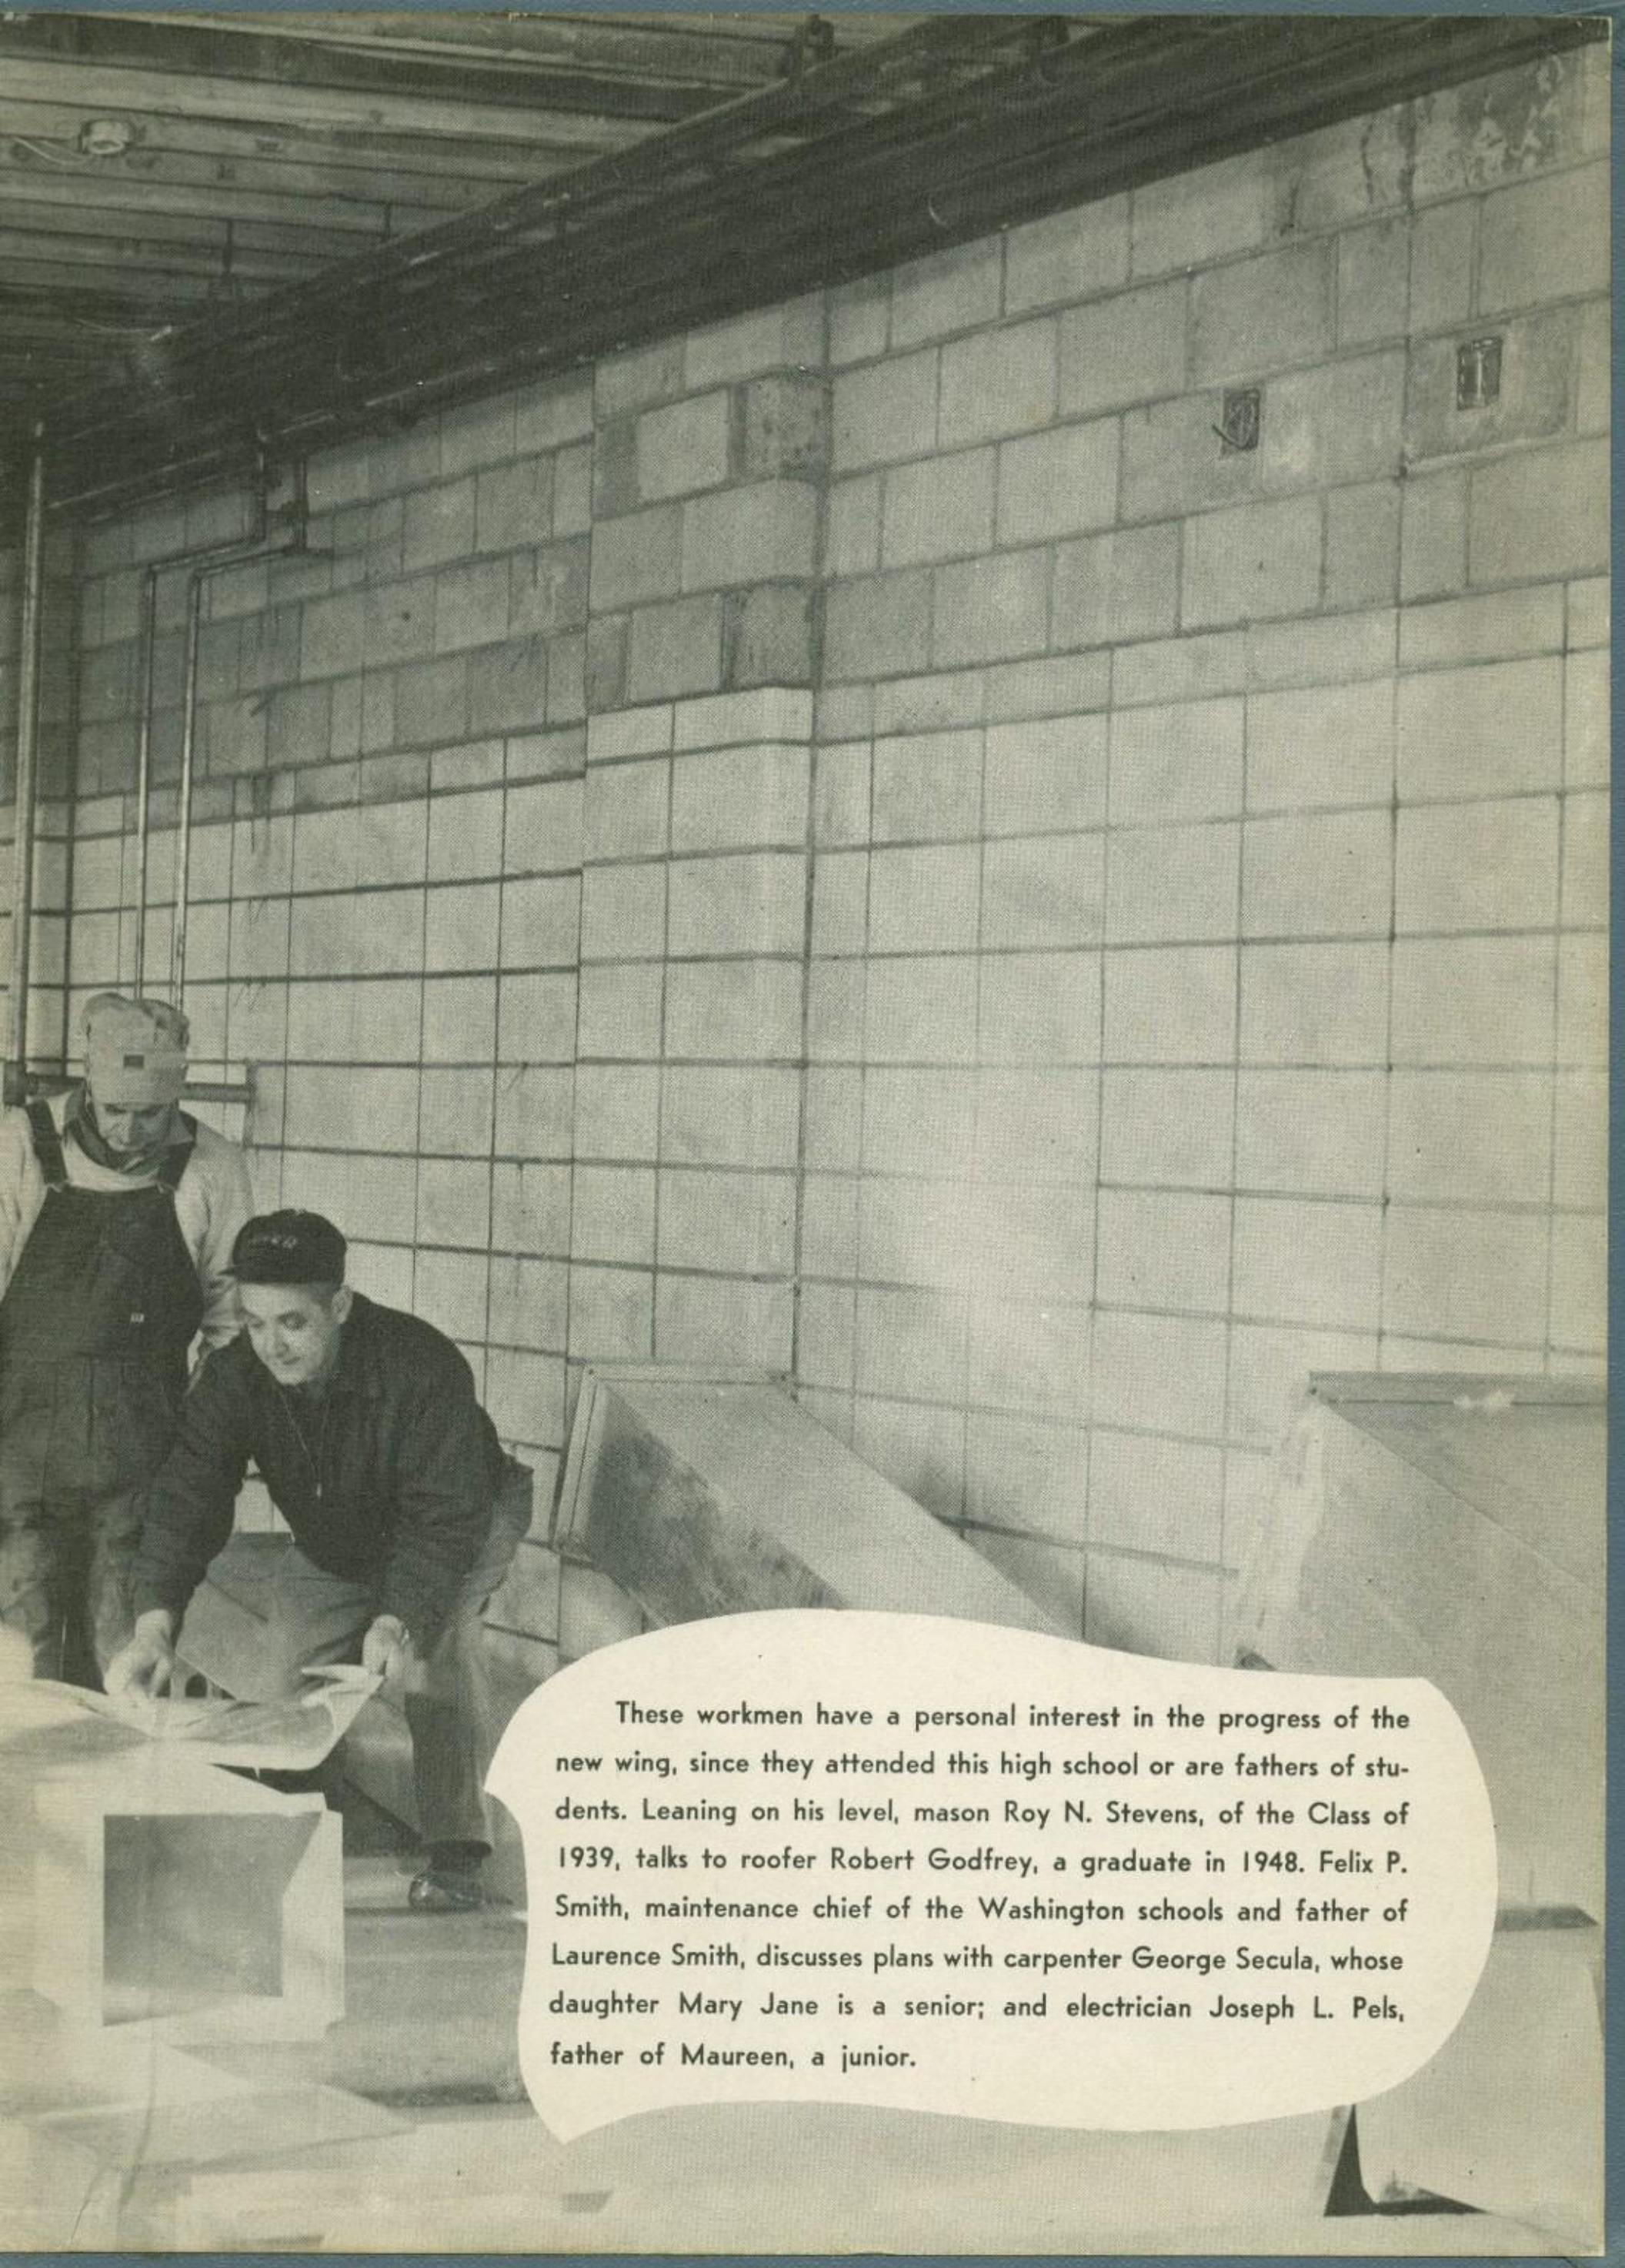
Partners in Progress





These workmen have a personal interest in the progress of the new wing, since they attended this high school or are fathers of students. Leaning on his level, mason Roy N. Stevens, of the Class of 1939, talks to roofer Robert Godfrey, a graduate in 1948. Felix P. Smith, maintenance chief of the Washington schools and father of Laurence Smith, discusses plans with carpenter George Secula, whose daughter Mary Jane is a senior; and electrician Joseph L. Pels, father of Maureen, a junior.
